

PERFORMANCES & READINGS

Scene Showcase

Sunday 3pm, Webster's, Free

Join the students from our weekend classes (or get on stage yourself and read!) as we celebrate the works of Arthur Miller, classic comedy sketches, and other great scenes from great plays and librettos.

The Soul Selects: The Poetry of Emily Dickinson

Tempest Productions & OLLI

Friday 2:30pm, Schlow Centre Region Library Community Room, $25/$20 for OLLI Members

(tickets through OLLI or at door)

Emily Dickinson's poetry, letters, and diary entries deliver a glimpse into the complex life of one of our most intriguing poets. Join the cast of The Soul Selects as our actresses imagine and re-imagine Emily in contemplation of the limitations of society and the creation of imaginable escapes. Come for tea, performance, and discussion. Revel in the exquisite language of past eras. OLLI members attend at a discounted cost and must register through OLLI (www.oli.psu.edu).

The War of the Worlds by H.G. Wells

Saturday 4pm, Webster's, Free

The year is 1938. The cost of a gallon of gas is 10 cents. Franklin D. Roosevelt is president. The primary medium of entertainment is the radio, and it caused panic in the eastern United States after listeners mistook a fictional broadcast called "War of the Worlds" as an actual news report. 4-22 male roles, 9 female roles—we can do this radio play with 5 actors! Come hear the show that frightened a nation as our Radio Class brings these words to life. Produced by special arrangement with Playscripts, Inc. (www.playscripts.com)

THEATRE FOR YOUNG AUDIENCES

Captain Aesop's All-Star Galaxy Games

Adam Swartz Puppets

Saturday 3pm, MLK Plaza, Free

Get ready to cheer for puppets from distant planets! Unique creatures and human characters exercise their bodies, minds, and feelings in a variety of cosmic challenges based on Aesop's Fables. Perseverance, sportsmanship, and imagination will be put to the test! What's the moral of the story? That's up to the audience to discover!

Give Me a Hand

Laurencio Carlos Ruiz Puppets

Saturday 6pm, The State Theatre, $12.50, Free with Class Pass

Give Me a Hand! is an interactive puppet show where children and parents have the opportunity to see and practice from the other side of puppetry. The audience is invited to be part of the puppet show as the puppet's right hand, with a task to complete. Come have fun and find out what you are capable of!
